Was Bird McGuire thinking of that big campaign fund that he would get by aiding Cannon and Aldrich when he voted for the Payne Tariff Bill?

Of course the bank deposit guarantee law was a democrat scheme to get votes, but, unlike divers republican schemes it not only got the votes, but actually guaranteed the deposits and not a dollar has been lost by any depositor since the law went into operation.

The manner in which republican politicians of the state have attempted to obstruct the operations of the guarantee law of bank deposits, shows conclusively what they would do to the law if the republican party would get control of the state. The democrat party stands for the guaranteeing of deposits and the republican is against the proposition.

The school land department is making, on an average, from twenty to thirty thousands of dollars of farm loans each week. Does this not look like the common people has an interest in the governing of the state? Nearly three million dollars have been loaned to the farmers from this fund since the farm loan department was organized.

Will a pipe line be established or will ordinary freight cars be used to carry the slush fund from republican national headquarters to Oklahoma to aid in the nomination and election of McGuire, Creager and Morgan, the three Oklahoma congressmen who betrayed the interests of their constituency that they may bask in the sunlight of the smiles of those who handled the purse strings of the organization of which Cannon and Aldrich are subservient?

Every time a mistake is made by a democratic official it is immediately brought to the attention of the people of Oklahoma by a special officer whose duty it is to check all state records. The State Inspector and Examiner has done his duty as laid down by the law and the work of all democratic officials is as an open book. Compare this method of procedure with that of the Territorial administration when every error was purposely covered up and no officer authorized to check the records and see which system you liked the best. The one is republican which was in vogue when Oklahoma was a Territory, the other is Democratic and put into operation by the Constitution.

ANCIENT RECKONING OF TIME

Sand Glass Can Be Traced Back 2,000 Years—Rod the Earliest Form of Timepiece.

The art of telling time is as old as the earliest historical records, though the methods employed in dividing up the day into equal periods have varied greatly during the last eras, and only in modern times have watches and clocks as we know them become customary. Many of these are most elaborate, but practically all possess a circular dial or face. However, only as late as the sixteenth century many watches were oval in shape, and an oblong one with six sides kept splendid time after it had been repaired 50 years later.

Probably the earliest form of timepiece, says Harper's Weekly, was the sundial, or index rod, of a sundial. At first this was merely an upright stick placed in a sunny spot and measuring the passage of the day by its shadow cast upon the bare earth, because the dial was a later invention. The sand glass, still frequently used as an indicator for the boiling of eggs, dates back 2,000 years and was always reliable in marking a fixed space of time, such as the hour. It has not been very many years since the hour glass had its particular place on the pulpit in our churches as an ever-present reminder to the preacher not to overtax the attention of his audience. The first glasses were filled with powdered glass, thoroughly dried for this material was not so susceptible to atmospheric moisture.

A still earlier instrument was the clepsydra, which measured time by the efflux of water through a tiny orifice. There were two types of these: in the first the water trickled from a small opening in one vessel and slowly filled a receptacle which was graduated to indicate periods of time, and generally a "float" pointed out the height of the water on the side of the vessel. In the second variety of this clepsydra the graduated vessel, having a small orifice in the bottom, floated upon a surface of water and gradually filled and sunk at the expiration of the fixed interval.

Crazed by Tall Buildings.

A man who was found half dazed in Madison square, New York, has made a curious statement that though he knew his own name and his house address, he didn't know how to get home, and that for nearly a week he had been in this condition. The interesting feature of the case is that what the man remembered as preceding his amnesia was straining his eyes and looking up from the street first at the Flatiron building and then at the Metropolitan tower. Soon afterward he went into a sort of trance and what he had done while it lasted he did not know.

Now it is a fact that one of the commonest methods of producing hypnosis is to subject the person experimented upon to a slighter but similar strain by holding some bright object just above the level of his eyes and telling him to look at it until a sense of weariness comes on. Usually the hypnotic sleep can thus be soon produced. To be sure, the man of Madison square did not show the ordinary phenomena of hypnosis, but as those phenomena are infinitely varied it is not impossible that he really was a victim of self-suggestion, induced exactly as he said. The question that arises, therefore, is whether other people, when in a susceptible state, are likely to have the same undesirable experience if they stand in the street and "rubber" too long at the skyscraper.

Million-Dollar Housekeeping.

In one hotel of 700 rooms only, the wage bill amounts to $17,000 a week. A big house—that is, one which contains from 1,000 to 1,500 rooms—and the Ausonia apartment hotel in New York has 2,500—will pay out $2,000 a day for food; to feed its thousand or fifteen hundred employees will mean from $500 to $700 to begin with, declares a writer in Everybody's Magazine. Fourteen barrels of flour, 700 dozen eggs, 25 barrels of oysters—the list may also go to indicate the waste there is. A big hotel will burn from 50 to 100 tons of coal a day, winter and summer; for almost as much is required to keep the house cool as to keep it warm. Items that might easily be left out of count—$70,000 a year for music and orchestras, for example—add their astonishing figures. Forty thousand dollars goes to new dishes and $60,000 to new linen. The whole bill for renewals, repairs and redecorations will annually amount to something between $500,000 and $600,000.

The Architecture of Madeira.

We saw no suggestion of modern architecture or European innovation—no blot anywhere, except a single motor car—the only one, I believe, in Funchal. Without knowing anything on the subject, I should say that the architecture of Madeira is a mixture of Spanish and Moorish—that of Mexico. Only it is less than anything in Mexico. From the ship the stucco, tile-roofed city is flawless; and as we steam away and night comes down and lights break out and become a jeweled necklace along the water's edge, our one regret is that we are leaving it all behind.—From "The Ship-Dwellers," by Albert Bigelow Paine, in Outing Magazine.

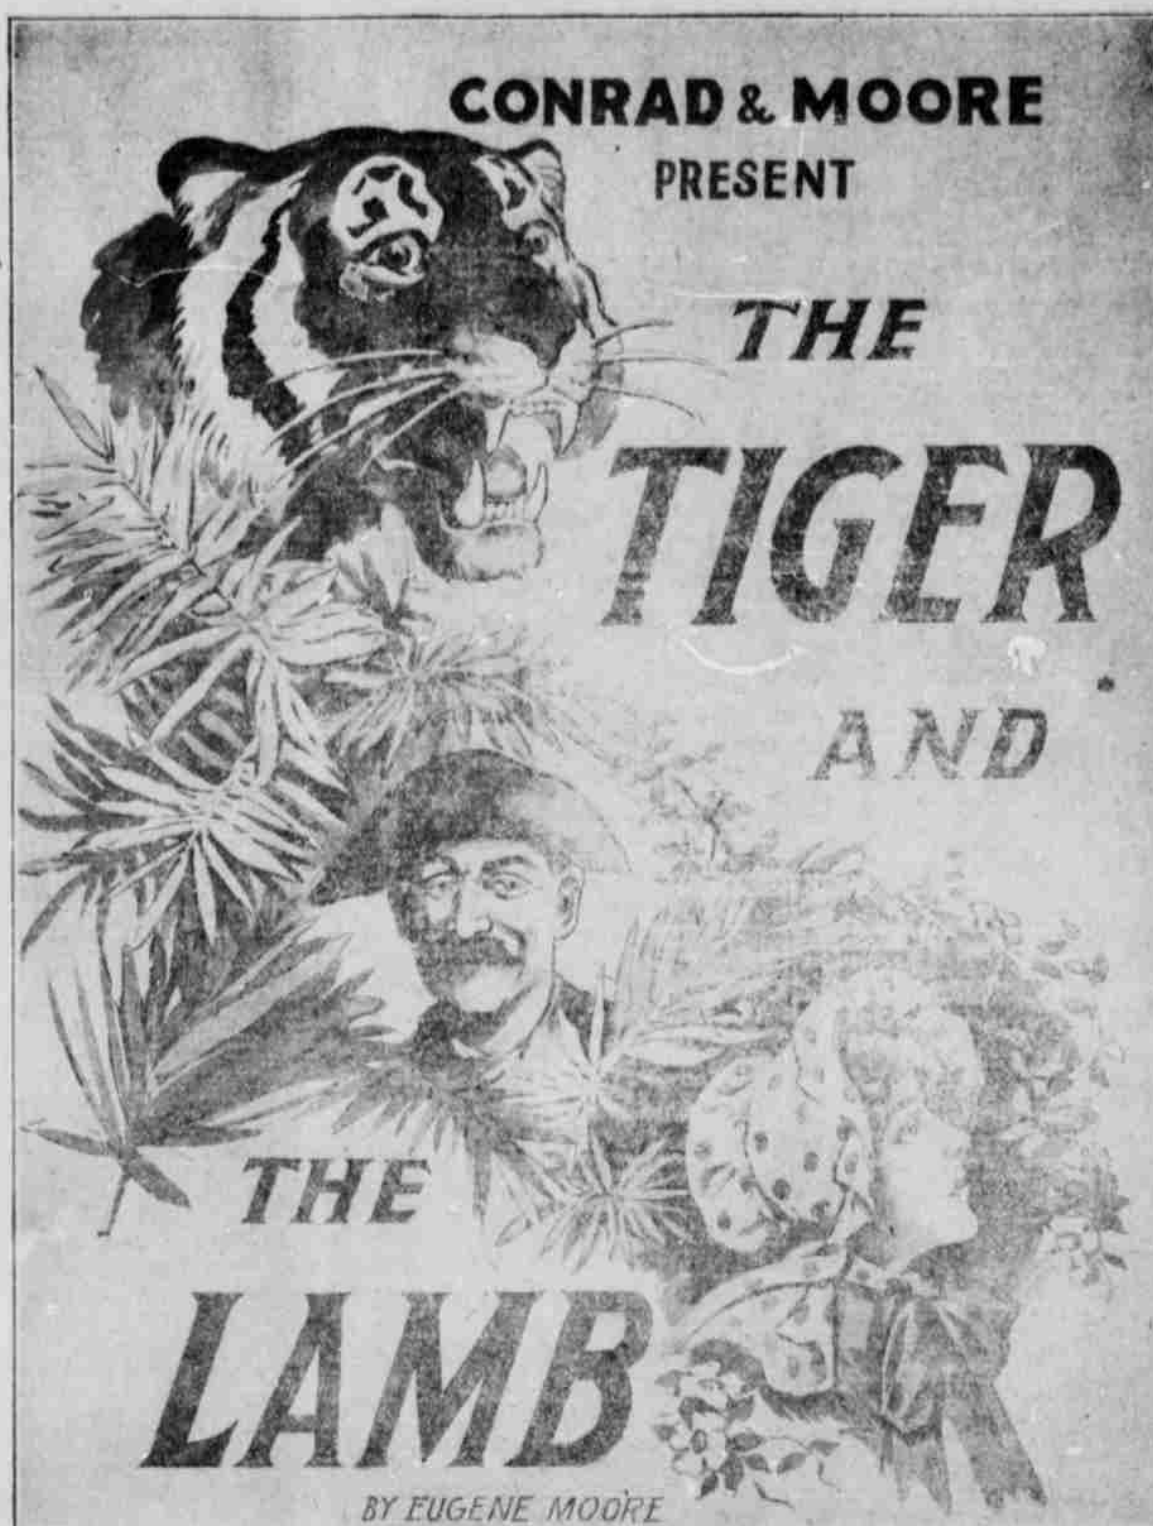

A Sad Similarity.

"Do you take exercise enough?" inquired the friend. "I'm afraid not," answered Miss Cayenne. "Taking exercise is like taking good advice. It is always what some one else ought to do."
